

ASSOCIATE DEGREE NURSING

Registered nurses provide for the physical, mental and emotional needs of their patients. They are advocates and health educators for patients, families and communities, guiding us to take proactive measures to ensure better health.

When providing patient care, they observe, assess and record the symptoms, reactions and progress of their patients, assist healthcare providers during treatments and examinations, administer medications, and aid in convalescence and rehabilitation. They accept responsibility, follow orders precisely, determine when consultation is required and are committed to lifelong learning.

OCtech's Associate Degree Nursing program offers hands-on practice in state-of-the-art labs and practical clinical experiences at area healthcare facilities that help you develop the skills, knowledge and confidence needed to excel in the field. Throughout our rigorous curriculum, you'll encounter the fundamentals of integrity, caring, work ethic and self-discipline – traits every nurse must possess. Upon graduation, you'll be ready for the National Council Licensing Examination and prepared to provide excellent care to patients in our community and beyond.
